MARKET COMMENTARY

Most major equity markets took a back step from their all-time highs in November. In particular, small cap companies were hit the hardest with the MSCI World Small Cap index dropping -4.8%. The domestic small cap market fared much better with the ASX Small Ords index returning -0.3%, while the Russell 2000, which tracks small cap companies in the US, returned -4.2% for the month.

When looking under the bonnet of the Russell 2000 there has been a notable divergence of returns from “value” and “growth” stocks. Over the last quarter, the Russell 2000 Value Index returned -1.8% while the Russell 2000 Growth Index performed substantially worse than its counterpart, returning -4.3% over the same period.

Turning to the other major indices, the S&P 500 (-0.7%), ASX200 (-0.4%) and MSCI Europe (-2.5%) generated negative returns while the Nasdaq (+0.3%) was in the green by a small margin in November.

The dominating headline during the month was the emergence of a new variant of COVID-19 coined as “Omicron”. Experts suspect the new strain originated from South Africa and information available at the time of writing suggests Omicron is more transmissible but early evidence indicates that it may be less deadly than previous variants of the virus. Many parts of the world, particularly in Europe, have reintroduced measures to reduce the spread of the virus and the level of uncertainty in markets has been dialled up a notch.

We met with numerous companies from different industries over the month and it is evident that the upwards pressure on inflation from supply chain issues is still ongoing. Importantly, at the end of November Fed Chairman Jerome Powell stated that it was time to retire the term “transitory” when talking about inflation. Higher for longer inflation rates have significant implications for markets so this is an area we are observing very closely.

Domestically, while the ASX didn’t experience the same run as other major global stock exchanges in October, it held up much better in November with the ASX Small Ords and ASX200 returning -0.3% and -0.4% respectively as noted above. Looking at the ASX Small Ords index, while the benchmark did not move significantly in November, there was a wide divergence of sector returns. The Energy (-5.6%) and Consumer Discretionary (-4.4%) sectors suffered the most while the Information Technology (+5.6%) and Materials (+4.7%) sectors contributed the most to performance.

PORTFOLIO COMMENTARY

During November, the Ophir High Conviction Fund’s investment portfolio returned -4.1% (net of fees) versus the index which returned +0.5%. Since its inception in August 2015, the Fund has returned +19.3% p.a. (net of fees) while the index has returned +12.7% p.a.

During November, the Ophir High Conviction Fund’s ASX listing provided a total return of -4.8% for the month.

The biggest contributor to performance in November was Mineral Resources (ASX:MIN). MIN is a mining services and processing company operating in Australia and parts of Asia. The company rose +17.3% during the month alongside iron ore and lithium prices.

The biggest detractor to performance in November was Tyro Payments (ASX:TYR). TYR is a payment solutions provider to merchants in Australia. The company tumbled by 28.7% during the month as Omicron weighed on sentiment coupled with confusion around TYR’s margins stemming from the deal it made with Bendigo Bank a year ago. It remains a core holding within the Fund and should continue to benefit from economic reopening.

In terms of our portfolio positioning, cash remains relatively low and we are keeping a close eye on those companies that can manage cost input pressures to those that cannot in the Fund due to the risk of more persistent inflation through supply chains.

In the absence of company specific news at this time of year, we think markets will focus on Omicron until there is further clarity on its three key unknowns: 1. How transmissible is it? 2. How virulent is it? 3. Do vaccines have effectiveness against it?

Politically, whilst people will accept some forms of international travel restrictions, it’s hard to see countries going back into hard lockdowns unless there’s a chance of health care systems being overwhelmed.

We believe this may delay the recovery of companies exposed to international travel reopening, but the domestic travel exposed companies are likely to be much less impacted.

INVESTMENT PHILOSOPHY

INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE

The Fund seeks to provide Unitholders with a concentrated exposure to a high quality portfolio of listed companies outside the S&P/ASX 50. Employing an extensive investment process that combines a rigorous company visitation schedule and fundamental bottom-up analysis, the Fund aims to identify businesses operating within structural growth sectors with the ability to meaningfully grow and compound earnings over time. The Fund aims to generate long-term returns in excess of the Benchmark (after fees and before tax) and provide consistent, sustainable returns for Unitholders.

INVESTMENT PROCESS

Ophir employs a fundamental, bottom-up research approach aimed at identifying businesses with the ability to meaningfully grow and compound earnings over time. Typically, the investment process will look to uncover businesses that are operating within, or about to enter, a period of structural growth and are generating cash or have a clearly identifiable pathway toward free cash flow generation. In order to identify these opportunities, the Ophir investment team spend a considerable amount of time understanding the quality of the business and the environment in which it operates.
